INTRODUCTION

Every word or diction has a certain meaning to make an idea that is in someone’s mind. Even the meaning of words can be "changed" when used in different sentences. This implies that the actual meaning of the word will be known when used in the sentence. More than that, it can cause different effects or reactions if used in different sentences. The use of the word will involve the meaning of the word and its vocabulary will give flexibility to the writer, choosing the words that are considered most appropriate to represent his or her mind. If people can choose the right words, then their writing or conversation will easily lead to the same ideas in the imagination of the reader or listener, as perceived or thought by the writer or speaker.

Semantics is a branch of linguistics that studying meaning and interpretation of words, signs, and sentence structure. It has an important part that interest to study that is figurate language. According to Kreidler (1998) says that linguistic semantics is the study of how languages organize and express meanings. In conclusion, semantics is the meaning and interpretation of words, sign, and sentence structure.
Figurative language meaning and interpretation of words, signs, and sentence structure which is different from the literal meaning of them. According to Perrine (1963, p. 5) that figurative language is a way of saying one thing and meaning another. She also says that a language that cannot be taken literary and say something other than the ordinary ways or says one thing and means another. Besides that, Crystal (1999, p. 116) explains that the figure of speech is an expressive use of language where words are used in a non-literal way to suggest illuminating comparisons and resemblances. For example, the literal meaning of her face is round can be her face like a moon in the figure of speech.

Keraf (1998;129) says that there two classifications of figurative language. There are rhetorical such illiteracy, assonances, anastrophe, asyndeton, polysyndeton, chiasmus, ellipsis, euphemism, litotes, paradox, hyperbole, and oxymoron. The second covers simile, metaphor, allegory, personification, allusion, metonymy, irony, and synecdoche.

The aims of using figurative language make literary works interesting and listeners or readers better understand the intended sentence. It can be found in writing or orally for example in book, poetry, song and also speech.

In many countries, many presidents use figures of speech to attract an audience, one of them is Joko Widodo. Joko Widodo is the president of the seventh Republic of Indonesia known as Jokowi. As the first in the country, all activities and even the president’s remarks came under the spotlight of the media and the public. There are many duties for president such he was always allowed to make speeches at every national and international event. As president, he was always allowed to make speeches at every national and international event. Interestingly, Mr. Joko Widodo is one of the presidents who are always up to date in the times. He is a humble and famous person that not only among the adult or old generation but also the millennial generation.

Mr. Joko Widodo not only gave speeches on statehood, but he also spoke about economics, politics, defense, and others. In 2018, he addressed several international events such as the Annual Meeting International Monetary Fund-World Bank (IMF-WB) in Bali, World Economic Forum ASEAN in Hanoi and US-ASEAN Business Council (US-ABC) Forum. In his speech, many figurative languages were found in which the word or dictation uses analogies from famous parts of the film such as Avengers, Game of Thrones (GoT), and The Terminator movie. Where the use of diction from these films attracted attention not only from the millennial generation but also delegations from other countries who also participated in the international event.

Many presidents and even the public use words or sentences that contain figurative language. The use of figurative language usually tends to be taken from objects or events that occur in the surrounding area. However, it is interesting when a president uses figurative language by using terms in dialogue and characters in movies. These movies have high ratting and famous in many countries in the world which most people know about them.

Based on the explanation above, the author chooses the analogy from the movie in Joko Widodo’s speech to search the type of figurative language and the meaning of the analogy.

Language is universal communication were in expressing the meaning of the language not only through actual meanings but also figurative meaning. A figure of speech is not intended to express literal meanings and often compares one idea with another to make the first idea simpler to understand.
There are many theoreticians classified as many as 250 types of figures of speech which most of the types have the same concept and principle. According to Leech (1981, p. 11) that there are seven types simile.

Besides Taylor (1981: 167) says that figurative language divided into three classifications. The first is comparison and substitution which consists of simile, metaphor, allusion, metonymy, analogy, and allegory. Second, representation by substitution that consists of synecdoche, personification, and symbol. The last is contrast by discrepancy and inversion that covers paradox or oxymoron, overstatement, understatement, and irony. The types of figurative language are also consisting repetition that is repeated use of the same words or sentence is successive clauses such as assonance.

1. Metaphor
A metaphor is an implied comparison between two objects without the use of words 'like or as'. For example, I'm fighting for this girl on a battlefield of love on Down song lyric by Jay Sean.

2. Allusion
An allusion is a figure of speech that indirectly refers to people, places, or famous things. It is also often used within a metaphor or simile. It also an explicit or implicit reference of events, figures, places mythologies, or famous masterpieces. For example, Superman's got nothing on me on One Call Away song lyric by Charlie Puth.

3. Assonance
Assonance is repeating vowel sound or diphthong in non-rhyming word but start with different consonant sounds. For example, Flash with a rash gimme my cash flickin' my ash; Running with my money, Son, go out with a blast. This is song lyrics of Gimme Some More by Busta Rhymes.
